2015 marks the fortieth anniversary of the Fall of Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. But for Southeast Asians, the war did not end in 1975. This event reflects on the legacies of historical trauma and the struggle of the Southeast Asian diaspora to make meaning of war, genocide, and exile.

This event is free and open to the public, refreshments will be provided.
The Ethnic Studies Library is wheelchair accessible. More info at eslibrary.berkeley.edu.
